WELCOME TO TROY UNIVERSITY

The Academic Year 2005-2006 marks a significant milestone in the history of this venerable institution of higher education dedicated to excellence in all of its endeavors. By the direction of the Board of Trustees, Troy State University becomes Troy University in August, 2005, to reflect more accurately its evolving mission and stature.

This name change represents the fifth major advancement in the storied, dynamic rise of the University to national and international prominence. Enabled by an act of the Alabama Legislature in February 1887, Troy Normal School, or teachers college, as it became familiarly known, matriculated its first class in September, 1887.

From the outset, the institution quickly earned a reputation for innovation and accessibility. Troy Normal became Troy State Teachers College in 1929, Troy State College in 1957, and Troy State University in 1967.

The Montgomery campus earned independent accreditation in 1983, as did the Dothan campus in 1985. The Phenix City campus and the locations around the nation and the world administered by University College have always operated under the accreditation of the Troy Campus. In 2005 the separately accredited campuses were merged into a single university structure forming Troy University.

The Troy University calendar information may be found in each Schedule of Classes or on the following Troy website: www.troy.edu.

Authorized by the State Board of Education, Troy University, then known as Troy State College, offered its first master's degree program in 1957 and awarded the first master's degree in education in 1958. Since that time Troy University has continued to meet the needs of its graduate students, and now the Graduate School offers advanced degrees in the colleges of education, business, the arts and sciences, health and human services, communication and fine arts.

Purpose of the Graduate School

The purpose of the Graduate School is to provide quality, accessible degree programs that respond to the needs of the University's constituency for prof conducted in a systematic, thorough, critical, interpretative, and analytical manner—free of challenge preconceived notions and receptive to new ideas; such research attempts to collate and synthesize new patterns of meaning, discover new truths, and correct past errors.

The second component of the graduate program requires that graduate students master their field of study. Such mastery would entail a thorough grasp of the subject matter, literature in the field, theory, and methodology related to the student's field of interest.

Finally, every graduate program must give the student the opportunity to demonstrate research skills, knowledge of the field, and their ability to contribute to the field of study. Thus, a person who wishes to do graduate level work must be prepared to pass examinations, both written and oral, to write coherent papers that reflect the results of research as defined above, and to participate in course projects.
