Through the Window

There is a window on the side of a great blue house
 It is situated on the side of the street
 Blue like the sky after rain, when the clouds have all gone home
 Or the brightest sapphire, bound to make a miner rich
 Or perhaps, it is the blue of the packaging on a box of Oreos
 That bright, most marketable blue imaginable
 And it sits on the corner of the street
 Everyone can see that house, that blue with snow-white trimmings

They don't see you

There is a family inside the great blue house

You are in the family

You are in the family

You are in the family

There is a family

There is a family
